GREAT BRITAIN'S BIDS BROUGHT ON JUMP IN SUGAR

"Facts About Sugar," the publication of the Domestic Sugar Producers, says:

"The outbreak of war in Europe has resulted in a sharp advance in sugar prices. On July 30, the lowest net cash quotation of the New York refiners for granulated sugar was 4.15 cents a pound while raw sugar was selling at 3.25 cents. By August 10, refined had advanced to 6 cents and raws to 5 cents.

"Germany, Austria, Russia and France, the nations actively engaged in conflict, are the chief sources of Europe's sugar supply, producing together some 7,500,000 tons of beet sugar. This is nearly 80 per cent of the entire output of beet sugar and more than one-third of the total sugar crop of the world. Ordinarily Germany, Austria and Russia export a million tons or more of sugar to other countries, largely to Great Britain. The vesting of the German beet crop is carried on largely by laborers from Russian Poland, and this labor will not be available if the war continues during the harvesting period. In all the countries involved in the war the labor supply is drained by military operations, and it is likely that the beet fields may be devastated by the movement of troops.

"Great Britain is the chief sugar importing country of Europe. Her yearly importations are over a million tons a year, of which approximately 700,000 tons ordinarily is drawn from nations now involved in war. With this source of supply cut off, Great Britain has turned to the New York market to secure sugar, buying 40,000 tons within the first few days of August and bidding up prices rapidly in order to obtain it. While the European war continues it will be necessary for the Britons to depend for sugar upon sources of supply on which usually they do not draw to any extent. It is evident from what has occurred already that they are likely to continue in sharp competition for Cuban sugar which ordinarily comes to the American market.

"The supply of Cuban and American grown sugar in sight at the end of July was just about sufficient to meet the estimated demands of American consumption up to the time when the crops now growing will become available. Any considerable outside draft upon this supply, therefore, was bound to show its effect at once in advancing prices.

"Fortunately for the United States, in spite of the curtailment of production in the cane and beet growing districts due to the reduction of the tariff, we still have a domestic production of sugar, including that of Porto Rico and Hawaii, which should amount to over one and a half million tons this year. This will serve as a great

WAILUKU EXPECTED PLENTY OF NOISE FROM SHRINERS AND GOT IT

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

WAILUKU, Maui, Aug. 24.—Shriners' banquet on Saturday night at the Maui Hotel was a great success. "Bilby" Field, who was initiated as a Shriner just before the dinner took place, was able to attend his duties as host, though grave doubts as to his physical ability had been entertained in the earlier part of the day. It is said that the two wild men in the cage, whom some people took for monkeys dressed up for the occasion, were also able to do their share at the repast. Altogether Maui has never seen a jollier bunch than sat down at that table. When one hundred men, and especially of the Shriner calibre, get to yelling, there is some yell. So the neighbors thought when the banquet was over and the cheering began in real earnest.

Many went to the dance at the town hall, which was also a brilliant success. The music was fine and the dance greatly enjoyed.

The outlying country was visited the next morning, and Maui scenery was enjoyed to the full advantage given by a clear and beautiful day.

In the afternoon the game of baseball between Wailuku and all Maui was a most interesting event, even if the Wailuku team won so many points that it was finally no use keeping the score. In the last inning, the Shriners pulled the umpire off the field, and put in one of their own men. He did not umpire to suit anybody, and then Rosecrans of Paia was put in. He also was unsatisfactory and at last the Shriners put in Berger the kapiteimeister, who knew nothing about baseball, and would only give the decisions that the crowd hooted for. He was a good sport all right, but the band during the performance really suffered, for the Shriner who took Berger's job insisted that such splendid music as "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" be played, and "So Say We All of Us." Berger kept to his job, however, and so did the Shriner, until the last inning was played, when the score still higher for Wailuku.

The game was interesting but best of all, the Kula Sanatorium made an exceedingly handsome sum out of the gate receipts. Fully one hundred automobiles were in line.

The evening was spent in preparations for the departure on the Mauna Loa. It is said that never before was the Claudine wharf at Kahului so crowded with people. There was hardly standing room. Amid the dim of the band, tremendous yells, and loud good byes, the boat pulled off at an end, but not until C. D. Lufkin was handcuffed and the key dropped overboard. D. C. Lindsay, the other wild man, was nearly captured in like manner but he managed to escape.

GREAT DOCKYARD IN JAPAN IS SOON TO BE COMPLETED

(By Latest Mail)

TOKIO, Japan. The colossal dockyard which is now under construction at Tobigaha at a cost of 3,400,000 yen, will be completed next year, and will be capable of receiving ships of more than 30,000 tons. This dock will be the largest of its kind in the Far East.

It is hoped that the cost of its establishment will be counterbalanced by avoiding the waste of money and the inconveniences that have hitherto attended the repairing of ships larger than those of the Fuji type, which were obliged to go down to the dock either at Saseho or Kure.

SECRETARY LANE SAYS WAR WILL BOOM U. S.; WILL GET MUCH TRADE

(By Latest Mail)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Secretary of the Interior Lane predicted in an interview today that the European war will result in a vast development of the mineral and manufacturing resources of the United States.

"It is possible to so develop and utilize our mineral and manufacturing resources, particularly in the west," said Lane, "that the label 'made in the United States' will become familiar around the world."

Lane believes the war is an opportunity for this country to become the trade mistress of the world.

BOOZE AND OLD LINE PARTIES TOO CLOSELY ALLIED DECLARES CARTER

Progressive Disciple, Campaigning for Delegation Shows Errors of Opposition

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILLO, August 24.—"A Nobler America" was the theme of ex-Governor Carter's address to the people of Hilo on Friday night last in the Masonic hall. The speaker did not press his claims very much for the position of delegate to Congress, but insisted that the party is sowing good seed that will bear fruit in the future. The aim of the party, said Mr. Carter, is to instill in the minds of thinking people of the United States ideas that will lead to a far better standard in politics maintained throughout the country.

The candidate outlined the platform of the progressives and, at the same time, criticized the Republicans. He said that the methods of campaigning in the past have been very bad. L. L. Quor has played too great a part in the past and, inquired the speaker, how could vote's intelligently exercise the franchise when full of beer? The great political rallies, the cheering and applause and the "enthusiasm" of the Republican meetings were truly "spiritual" efforts, declared Carter.

Then, speaking on the part money has played in the past elections, the candidate told of how leaders among the Hawaiians used to be given money to distribute in payment of votes. That plan failed, after a while, when it was found that the intelligent voter took the coin and then voted as he pleased. Another scheme was then tried, said Carter, and the leaders in the different districts were only paid when the "goods were delivered."

"After the poll closed and was declared," said the speaker, "if it was found that 60 votes had been cast the right way in a certain district, the runner who brought about the desired object was paid, say a dollar per vote. Then the voters, perhaps getting nothing, said 'Where do we come in?'"

That state of affairs is objected to by the Progressive party, declared Mr. Carter, just as much as many other things connected with the Republican party.

Speaking of undue influence being brought to bear on voters by their employers, the candidate declared that every man should be just as free to use his vote as he is free to believe in any religion he thinks fit. Going into details, Mr. Carter declared that he knew of an instance where a young man who came from the coast to Honolulu to fill a position with a firm joined the local Progressive party. He had belonged to that organization in San Francisco and thought that he would be free to join any political organization he cared to in these islands. Much to his surprise, after he had signed the Progressive roll in Honolulu, he was informed by his employer that there would be trouble if the fact became known that the newcomer was a Progressive. The new arrival, therefore, thinking more of his bread and butter than of his political faith, went to Progressive headquarters and asked that his name be removed from the list.

Speaking of woman suffrage, Mr. Carter declared that his party is in favor of the measure. "The women who are good enough to rear our children are good enough to help make our laws," declared the speaker.

A conciliation court is another suggestion of the Progressives. The candidate said that, too often, the rich man got the best of a law suit. The poor man would be safeguarded if there were a conciliation court where all law suits would first be tried, without lawyers on either side, he said. Only the plain facts of the whole case would be stated and justice would be done in that court. Then, when the suit went to the other courts the poor man would, if he had already obtained a decision in the conciliation court, have the advantage of the previous verdict. Poor men would not have to fight unlimited money as in some cases happens nowadays.

Talking of his own candidacy, the speaker said that he was not going around like the other candidates soliciting votes. He would be very pleased to go to Washington and serve Hawaii if elected. He thought that he could do a lot of good as delegate, as he is known personally to many of the congressmen. The personal touch would be a great help, said the candidate, and he felt that he was very well known in these islands as well as in Washington.

The speaker said that he thoroughly believed in the referendum and the initiative. The recall was also a good thing, said Mr. Carter. If the legislature put a law on the books that was not satisfactory to the people, there would be no need to wait until the next legislature for a chance to have the law repealed. The referendum would take care of such a matter and the people could vote directly to have the objectionable law removed from the statutes. The initiative would work on similar lines, and the people could get what they wanted. The recall would make men in political and government positions work during the time they were in office. The fear of being dumped before their term expired would keep them up to the mark. In too many cases, said the speaker, men are put in office for two years and then proceed to loaf on the job. A sport may be made toward the end of the term but, on the whole, the men loaf and do not act as they should during the whole time they are elected for. If the recall were instituted these men would be "Johnnie on the spot" all the time, declared the ex-governor.
